Before restoration

The Shriver House Museum is celebrating 25 years in business. In 1996, Del and Nancie Gudmestads purchased a house on Baltimore Street, now known as the Shriver House. The two-story brick house was built just months before the Civil War began. 136 years later, it sat abandoned for nearly 30 years. Restoring the Shriver's home to its 1860s appearance was an extremely challenging undertaking but it was a labor of love. The restoration began in January 1996. Twenty-five years later, the Gudmestads' have shared the Shriver's story with hundreds of thousands of people. Due to the attention to details during the restoration, the Pennsylvania Historical & Museum Commission recognized the meticulous restoration of the once abandoned Shriver's home with a Historic Preservation Award.

WORKING WITH LOCAL LEGISLATORS

by Steve Rasmussen, CEO/General Manager Adams Electric Cooperative, Inc.

“ALL POLITICS IS LOCAL.” This observation by the late Thomas P. “Tip” O’Neill Jr., former speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, means that even national politics have a local impact, and people care most about issues that directly affect them. Indirectly, this famous adage underscores the importance and value of local politics.

At Adams Electric, we think it’s critically important to develop and cultivate relationships with local legislators because they craft, introduce, and vote on legislation that impacts local businesses, the environment, and quality of life for our rural community. We work closely with our local elected officials. After all, our purpose is to provide safe, reliable and affordable energy, but our mission is to help those we serve.

Adams Electric helps power economic development and prosperity for our region. As a cooperative, we have deep roots here, and we listen closely to our members to better understand the needs of those around us. Our leadership, board members, and employees live and work right here in the communities we serve.

We strive to be an advocate for our communities, ensuring that local legislators know, understand and act on the issues that are important to our area. In December, we hosted an energy workshop for local legislators to review some of the co-op’s local, statewide, and national legislative priorities, including the costs of providing power, rate stability, system reliability, power supply, broadband and local needs.

We recognize that most legislators’ expertise may not include the changing energy industry, which is why Adams Electric is a reliable resource for lawmakers. We work with elected officials regardless of their party affiliation, and while we appreciate their willingness to work with the cooperative on energy-related matters, it does not mean that we agree with everything they say or do.

Today’s energy landscape is an increasingly complex topic, covering not only the traditional engineering and vegetation management aspects of the industry, but also encompassing technology, cybersecurity, the electrification of the transportation sector, and connecting communities through fiber.

Our employees can provide briefings to legislators and their staff. And because we’re involved in economic development and we know local community leaders, we can provide insight on how issues and policies might impact our region.

We periodically invite legislators and their staff to the co-op for tours, so they can see firsthand how we operate and can view our dispatch center, substations, EV charging stations, etc. We strive to be a trusted resource on energy issues. We continue to invest in the long-term interests of our members.

We’re proud to power your life and bring good things to our communities. We hope you’ll continue to advise us on matters of importance to you, so we can continue to advocate on your behalf and improve the quality of life for all those we serve.

ADVOCACY UPDATE

BY THE WAY...DID YOU KNOW I HAVE A PODCAST? BY REPRESENTATIVE TORREN ECKER (R-193)

I am always looking for new ways to reach the residents I am privileged to represent in the Pennsylvania House. It is my philosophy that keeping people informed on what their elected officials are doing further increases oversight and improves our society in general.

To that end, my team and I started a podcast called “By the Way...Did you Know?” a few months ago with the aim of telling the stories of bills that do not receive a lot of media attention but will have a profound impact on the lives of Pennsylvanians.

Each episode features an in-depth discussion about the bills, or, in some cases, laws in a concise manner with either the sponsor of the bill or someone directly impacted by it. One episode covered a law to update expiration date labels on milk containers. In another, I talk with an organ transplant recipient about a bill to increase protections for living donors.

Recently, I was joined by House Speaker Bryan Cutler (R-Lancaster) to chat about a law, known as the Employment First Law, he sponsored that helps those with physical and mental disabilities find meaningful employment.

I hope you can find a few minutes to check out the podcast. To listen to it, go to www.repecker.com/mypodcasts.

THE RECOVERY STARTS NOW BY ADAMS COUNTY COMMISSIONER, MARTY QUALLY

Over the past year two significant pieces of legislation have been enacted that will bring with them unprecedented funding opportunities for county and local government. They are the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) and the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act (Infrastructure). This month the county received initial guidance on Infrastructure funding and final guidance on ARPA funds.

The Infrastructure bill is long overdue, as at the state and federal level there has been little investment into improving public infrastructure. In general this bill addresses public transit, airport upgrades, hi-speed internet, safe drinking systems, abandoned wells, and electric vehicle networks. While some of these items won't impact Adams County, I hope our community makes a strong push for hi-speed internet funds.

The ARPA funds are to be used to help overcome the negative impacts of the pandemic and are also by federal standards incredible flexible pools of funding. In broad terms ARPA funds can be used to: support public health response, address negative economic impacts, replace lost public sector revenue, and to improve water, sewer, and broadband infrastructure.

I encourage you to look up and review these bills and contact the county with projects you feel are important to our community.

PENNSYLVANIA FREE ENTERPRISE WEEK – CREATING OUR NEXT GREAT WORKFORCE!

As your partner in supporting local business, we know how difficult it is to find and keep great employees. Many of our young people lack the knowledge and skills you need, or they leave to pursue opportunities because they simply don't know about the great local jobs available right here, right now. That's why we support Pennsylvania Free Enterprise Week (PFEW). PFEW is a youth development program like no other. It teaches high school students about business and our American free enterprise system and helps them develop job ready skills like leadership, communication, work ethic, finance, marketing and more that prepare them for great careers right here at home.

Offered by the Foundation for Free Enterprise Education (FEE), PFEW holds multiple week-long summer sessions for rising high school juniors and seniors on the campuses of Lycoming College and the Pennsylvania College of Technology in Williamsport.

PFEW made a triumphant return to in-person learning in 2021, educating 1,139 students statewide. This summer, they plan to welcome 1,600 eager students to Williamsport for the 43rd year of this award-winning program. Students attend on a fully tax-deductible $625 sponsorship donated by a business, foundation, organization or individual. FEE is an approved Educational Improvement Organization through the PA Educational Improvement Tax Credit (EITC) program. I encourage you to provide PFEW sponsorships for our local students and, if possible, volunteers for the sessions.

FEE offers two other impactful programs that prepare students for the 21st century workforce. The Stock Market Game™ (SMG) teaches students in grades 4-12 about investing and financial literacy, and the Speaker Series helps students explore careers and develop the knowledge and skills needed to become great employees. All Foundation programs are singularly focused on promoting the ideals of business and the American free enterprise system and preparing our young people to become great business and community leaders. To learn more about PFEW or their other educational programs, please visit the Foundation's website, www.pfew.org, or contact Scott Lee, vice president of marketing & development for the Foundation for Free Enterprise Education at (814) 833-9576 ext. 8, or scott@pfew.org.
