MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

SEK, CPAs & Advisors

Kara Darlington, CPA - kdarlington@sek.com - 717-637-5915

Let's meet Kara Darlington from SEK, CPAs & Advisors!

Darlington is currently the Director of Audit and Advisory (A&A) and the Managing Partner Elect. Her term as the Director of A&A will end on January 1, 2025, concurrent with her stepping into the Managing Partner role. Her responsibilities as the Director of A&A are to (1) develop and lead firm-wide audit initiatives, (2) ensure resources, people and technologies, are in place to provide excellent client service, and (3) ensure that clients are receiving the services they desire at a fair price.

Being a member of the firm at SEK, Darlington has the opportunity to stay educated and engaged with trends in the industry through receiving annual professional education credits, membership in professional associations, attending industry conferences and webinars, and reading industry publications.

Her advice to new business owners is, "Take the necessary steps early on to develop and maintain a robust financial accounting system, whether it be maintained in-house or outsourced to a firm like SEK, having accurate, timely financial information is critical to the success of all businesses and organizations."

To go hand-in-hand with that advice, Darlington believes that trust and integrity are two essential cornerstones of all successful leaders and that they will promote frequent communication and transparency to build the trust that is critical to future success.

When she is not working, Darlington enjoys spending time around Adams County, specifically the Gettysburg National Military Park.

What motivates you to jump out of bed every morning?

The accounting profession is experiencing a number of challenges right now, largely as a result of a shortage in our most valuable resource, people! The unlimited number of opportunities to serve our clients and prospective clients is what motivates me every day. Many individuals and businesses are struggling to find accounting and auditing services due to the staffing shortage, and SEK is doing all that we can to fulfill the role of a trusted advisor to as many individuals and organizations as possible.

What business challenges keep you awake at night?

Many accounting firms are entering a phase whereby the "baby boom" generation is preparing to retire. The large number of "baby boomers" leaving the profession along with the decreasing number of college graduates entering the public accounting profession is causing a severe shortage of talent. This talent shortage is one of the biggest challenges facing the public accounting profession today.

What makes Adams County such a great place to do business?

There is a strong sense of collaboration and support through local chambers and business groups, from educational seminars to networking mixers. Additionally, the tight-knit community provides a welcoming atmosphere and offers unique market opportunities.

As someone doing business in Adams County, how does the chamber help you?

The chamber offers a robust directory of local, reputable businesses. This serves as a short list for us to find quality goods and services when there is a need. Notably, clients often discover and connect with SEK through this valuable directory resource.

ADVOCACY UPDATES

IMPROVING CHILDREN'S HEALTHCARE

BY CONGRESSMAN JOHN JOYCE (R-13)

When I first came to Congress, addressing healthcare concerns in our community became my immediate focus. Since then, I've been proud to become a member of the House Energy and Commerce Health Subcommittee and continue working to find ways to address healthcare issues. Recently, I was proud to join a bipartisan group of members to introduce the Emergency Medical Services for Children (EMSC) Reauthorization Act.

Children are not simply smaller adults when it comes to providing medical care. They have distinct medical needs that require specialized attention. Ensuring they receive the right care from the moment that an ambulance is called is crucial to saving lives.

For nearly four decades, the EMSC program has been dedicated to ensuring that healthcare providers are equipped with the right tools, dosage information, and treatments. This unwavering commitment has ensured that our children receive the highest standard of care, instilling confidence in the quality of children's healthcare and reauthorizing this vital program must be one of our top priorities in Congress.

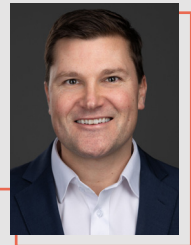

Parents know that when a child is sick, nothing else matters.

This program helps ensure that hospitals and ambulances are properly equipped to treat pediatric emergencies, provide pediatric training to paramedics and first responders, and help improve how we respond to emergencies.

As your representative in Washington, I'll continue working to pass legislation that supports our healthcare providers and their patients.

STATEMENT ON BASIC EDUCATION FUNDING COMMISSION REPORT

PA CHAMBER OF BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY PRESIDENT AND CEO LUKE BERNSTEIN

We applaud the Basic Education Funding Commission and its members for their time, attention, and commitment to hearing from a range of stakeholders, including the PA Chamber, during their review of the Commonwealth's funding of public education.

The goal of our education system is to equip the next generation of Pennsylvania's entrepreneurs, business leaders, and talented workforce with the skills necessary for the job market of today as well as tomorrow. Appropriate state funding is important to achieving this goal, but simply spending money should not be pursued as a goal in and of itself. We are disappointed that the Commission's adopted report lacks important accountability measures and popular programs, like the Educational Improvement Tax Credit (EITC) program and Pennsylvania Award for Student Success (PASS) program, that enable students to pursue an education that fits their needs. We urge the General Assembly and Governor Shapiro to emphasize policies that prioritize student outcomes and maximize taxpayers' current robust investment, including embracing rigorous standards and a system of accountability focused on student performance.

Currently, Pennsylvania students are struggling to achieve proficiency in math and science despite the seventh highest per pupil expenditure in the country. Pennsylvania students deserve systematic change that prioritizes outcomes rather than financial inputs. In her Commonwealth Court Decision, Judge Renee Cohn Jubelirer emphasized this point, writing, 'Nothing in the foregoing opinion undermines the ability of the General Assembly to continue providing local control to school boards or infringes on any of the sister branches of government's authority. Nor does it require reform to be entirely financial.'

We urge lawmakers to embrace this sentiment and engage in a comprehensive discussion on Pennsylvania's public education system. While this discussion should include funding levels, it should focus on maximizing existing funding and developing the systemic reforms necessary to ensure Pennsylvania children receive a quality education that prepares them for future success.
